

In my view, any client-centric organization should start a digital transformation with the customer journey in mind. When it comes to our clients, we always strive to deliver an exceptional experience.

Intellectsoft is a team of digital transformation professionals who provide engineering solutions to companies worldwide.

Our services range from strategic IT consulting to full life-cycle application design, integration, and management.

In modern realms, industrial leaders should allow technologists to predict the expectations of their guests with high precision, attuning the guest experience on the go to feed personal and market demands.

We are being proud of the fact that after three years of working with one of our major clients, we have ultimately become their trusted technology partner in their digital transformation journey.

One of the challenges of working with the client is that we have to constantly apply the full spectrum of new and emerging technologies while developing a unified platform solution. After dozens of iterations, our team of experts implemented serverless, cloud-based, and edge technologies to build a unique ecosystem for the client.

As part of the digital roadmap, we have made a significant input in the development of solutions like smart suite integration, multifunctional mobile system development, casino operating system, marketing solutions, and many more.

Today, our team is an integral part of the client's digital roadmap, and we are happy to work closely with their engineering and product team and drive innovation beyond together.
